THE WILD HOG COUNTRY MARKET

Rooted in Tradition, Serving with Heart

Just outside of Stratford, Wild Hog Country Market is more than just a market — it's a heartfelt tribute to tradition, community, and a slower way of life. Marv and Wendy Bachert, along with their family, opened the doors with a vision inspired by the general stores of the past and a shared dream of creating a from-scratch farm shop that reflected their deep roots in the farming and meat industry. With generations of knowledge behind them and a love for gathering around good food, Wild Hog Country Market came to life.

Bachert Meats began as a small meat packing business in 1965 — when Marvin's parents, Keith and Janet Bachert purchased a farm near Walton - and has grown into a thriving, third-generation family operation. With their eldest son Derick and his wife Kaitlynn most recently taking the reins, Marv and Wendy were able to embark on building the Market that they had always envisioned.

Inside, every detail is intentional - from the thoughtfully curated pantry shelves to the aroma of fresh coffee brewing at the café. The market celebrates the abundance of the region, offering fresh seasonal produce, ethically raised meats, and a selection of goods that spotlight local artisans and culinary talent.

Wild Hog also hosts monthly Long Table Dinners - after-hours, chef-curated meals that showcase the quality of their produce and meat, and offer guests a memorable way to connect over food. Whether you're stopping in for a hot breakfast or lunch, grabbing your favourite cut from the butcher, or just sipping tea while catching up with a friend, Wild Hog Country Market offers more than just products - it offers a place to connect.
